Letters for Richard, prior of Plympton, by reason of his debility, nominating Elias Gustard and Matthew de Mynmynglond, his fellow canons, his attorneys for three years.

Grant in fee simple to A. bishop of Durham of the houses or burgages within the town of Berwick-on-Tweed, late of Nicholas de Langeton, sometime burgess of Berwick, and forfeited to the king by his rebellion.

Mandate to John de Warenna, earl of Surrey, keeper of the realm and land of Scotland to deliver the same.

Safe-conduct, until St. Peter ad Vincula, for Isarvus de Faviaux, knight, going to remote parts on certain affairs.

Signification to O. bishop of Lincoln, of the royal assent to the election of John de Beybury, canon of St. Mary's, Oseney, to be abbot.

Michael, canon of Weym, bringing news of the deposition of Thomas his abbot, has letters of licence to elect.

Power to the justiciary of Ireland, or the person supplying his place, to give the royal assent to the person elected abbot in his place, and after taking his fealty to restore the temporalities, having first received from the abbot elect letters patent sealed with his seal and that of his chapter that this grace shall not be to the king's prejudice.

Safe-conduct, for two years, for William Payn, burgess of Gloucester, going with merchandise to Flanders and elsewhere.

Appointment, during pleasure, of Thomas de Cantebrug, king's clerk, whom the king is sending to Gascony with the first fleet as principal receiver and keeper of the king's money, which he is sending now or hereafter to Bayonne, and of John de Sandal, king's clerk, whom the king is sending afterwards to those parts in the company of Edmund the king's brother as controller of the receipts and payments; and all payments of wages, stipends and other necessaries affecting the king are to be made at Bayonne and not elsewhere, by command and ordinance of Henry de Lacy, earl of Lincoln, supplying the place of the king in the duchy. Moreover, if the earl go to other parts to put stores in the king's castles and towns, or on other business without the said town, they are to go in his company, and they are always to make payments and expenses conjointly and not separately, upon the mandate of the earl, so that each may see and well know what the other does.

Letters for William, bishop of Emly, staying in England sick, nominating Ralph de Cotes and Adam Gryffyn his attorneys in England for two years.

The like for the same, nominating Richard de Myde and John de Leden in Ireland for two years.

Mandate to all subjects of the land of Ireland, as their services will shortly be wanted in the present war between the king and the king of France, to provide themselves without delay with horses and arms, so as to be ready to come to the king and go with him in his own person for the defence and salvation of the realm, whenever the king may demand it. The king also desires them to know that he proposes to retain them by his side and not to send them elsewhere, wherefore it seems to the king that they are bound to be more willing (promiores) to come to the king and to go with him in that form, and also to be more prompt (promptiores). The king requests them to give full faith on this business to John Wogan,
