A marriage compact having been arranged between Humphrey de Bohun, earl of Hereford and Essex, and Hugh de Curteney for the marriage of the latter's son Hugh to Margaret, daughter of the earl, the king's niece, in accordance with which compact Hugh de Curteney is to grant to his said son Hugh and Margaret 400 marks a year of land and rent in his manors of Crukerne and Asshecombe, co. Somerset, of Newenham Curteney and Honyton, co. Devon, of Ebriton, co. Dorset, and Crowelle and Newenham, co. Oxford, held in chief, to hold to them and the heirs of the body of the said Hugh his son, so that the said Hugh and Margaret during the life of the said Hugh the son shall pay to him 400 marks a year for the said lands and rents: and if the said Hugh the son shall pre-decease his father, then Margaret shall hold for her life after the death of her husband the said lands and rents, quit of the said 400 marks, by the service of a rose to be rendered every year to the said Hugh de Curteney the father and his heirs. The king, as a favour to the said Hugh de Curteney the younger and Margaret, grants a licence to Hugh de Curteney the elder to grant to them the said 400 marks of land and rents out of his said manors, to be held by them as is above set forth; further, if the said Hugh the younger shall die without issue by the said Margaret, or any other, then after the death of the said Hugh and the said Margaret, the lands and rents aforesaid shall revert to the said Hugh de Curteney the father for his life, with remainders over to Robert son of Hugh de Curteney and the heirs of his body, and to Thomas son of Hugh de Curteney and his heirs.
