Membrane 34—cont.

Kyrkele, Dunewych, Orford, Gosford, Erewell, and Ipswich, co. Suffolk, from the merchants, fishermen, and mariners of the count; such collection to be made by the view and testimony of the bailiffs of the said places, viz., indentures or tallies to be made between the said Robert and Roger, or their attorneys, and the bailiffs, and that of the whole sum so to be collected the said Robert shall receive two parts, and the said Roger one third, until they shall be fully satisfied, or the king shall order otherwise. Such collection is to be made from the ships in form before ordained, and from the value of the goods and wares for sale carried therein. The said Robert and Roger are to render an account of all such receipts into the Chancery as often as they shall be warned to do so. Every assistance is to be rendered to them in making the collections for as much as they have taken oath that in such collection or levy they will not, by themselves or their attorneys, commit any fraud or malice, or show favour to any merchant, fisherman, or mariner of the power of the count. Such commission is to last until Christmas next unless the said Robert and Roger shall be able to collect their debts sooner.

Whereas between the town of Lyverpol, co. Lancaster, and the priory of Birkheved, co. Chester, there is a common ferry across the arm of the sea, and it has happened that on account of changes of weather and tempests men from the county of Chester wishing to cross over into the county of Lancaster, when hindered, in great numbers turn aside to the said priory, because that at the ferry neither houses are found for sheltering them nor victuals can be bought for their sustenance, by reason whereof the priory is burthened beyond its resources by such burthens, and travellers...
