MEMBRANE 33.

Feb. 20, Windsor.  Whereas the king had granted, during pleasure, to queen Isabella, the manor of Ellesmere with the hamlets of Culmre and Hampton, pertaining thereto, together with knight's fees, advowsons of churches and other appurtenances, and John de Knokyn, king's yeoman, who held the manor of Wattlington, co. Oxford, for life of the king's grant, surrendered the said manor to the king, who has granted it to the queen to hold in form above-said. The king with the assent of queen Isabella grants the manor of Ellesmere with its hamlets to the said John de Knokyn for life, subject to rendering to the queen 20l. a year, by which sum it exceeds the value of the manor of Wattlington, and if it happen that the queen shall die during the lifetime of the said John, he shall, so long as he shall live, pay the said 20l. a year at the Exchequer, saving to the king the knights' fees and advowsons of churches belonging to the manor of Ellesmere.
