June 18. Whereas the king's son, John duke of Brittany, has pledged to the king, for a loan, the castle and town of Becchell in the same duchy, and the king has committed the said castle and town to William de Latymor; now, wishing to provide for the better rule of the same while they shall be in his hand, the king asks his friends and orders his lieges in the said duchy to render aid and counsel to the said William, his deputies or lieutenants, upon the safe keeping and good rule of the same.
