MEMBRANE 5.

Dec. 14. Westminster. Whereas lately Walter de Mauny, knight,—to whom, by virtue of a recognisance of 2,000l. sterling made to him by Henry de Causton, sometime citizen of London, was delivered one moiety of a tenement which Henry held of the gift and feevment of William Galeys, late servant of queen Isabel, in burgage in his demesne as of fee at the time of his death in the ward of the Vintry, London, in the parish of St. Thomas the Apostle, situated between a tenement sometime of Alan atte Mounte of Stanes on the east and a tenement of Simon de Brounesford on the west, until the said debt should be levied therefrom,—and Robert de la More and Geoffrey de Newenton, citizens of London, assignees of Roger Hardegray in respect of the other moiety of the said tenement delivered to the said Roger for satisfaction of a debt of 100l. sterling due to him by virtue of a recognisance by statute merchant made by the said Henry in his favour before Roger Virly, late mayor of Norwich, and Edmund Rose, then clerk of the recognisances in the same city,—granted their estate and possession in the said moieties to Benedict Zacary, merchant and citizen of London, and his assigns; and the said Henry has died without heir, as is found by an inquisition taken before John Pyel, mayor and escheator of London, so that the tenement, as soon as the said debts have been levied therefrom, should pertain to the king as escheat, and the said Benedict has granted his estate therein to the king and surrendered the tenement into the king's hands: the king has granted the same, with the houses, towers and buildings built thereon, to John de Ipre, knight, and Margery his wife, and the heirs of John.
