1374.
May 15. Whereas James de Audeley of Heleye lately enfeoffed Roger Magot, John Orchard and Philip Warrewyk, chaplains, of the castle and lordship of Neuport in Kemoys, held in chief, and the feoffees afterwards granted the same to him and Isabel, his wife, now deceased, and their heirs, and the feoffees as well as James and Isabel entered therein without licence; the king, considering that James originally paid him 24 marks for a licence, which was afterwards surrendered in the Chancery by negligence, and for 40s. paid by him, has pardoned the said trespasses and granted that he may retain the premises in fee.

MEMBRANE 12.

June 14. Inspeximus and confirmation of letters patent indented, dated 18 May, 1374, whereby John de Hernesthorp, warden of the hospital of St. Katharine by the Tower of London, and the brethren and sisters of the hospital, grant to William de Wynselowe, citizen and tailor of London, and Joan, his wife, a plot of land within the hospital containing in length 150 feet, and in breadth 33 feet on the north side and 27 feet on the south side, which lies between the tenement of Stephanetta Olneye on the west and the brethren's cloister on the east and extends from the great ditch in the garden on the north as far as the churchyard of the hospital on the south as the tenement of Stephanetta does, so that they may build on the plot at their pleasure and hold it so built upon for life without rendering anything therefor; also two white loaves and two black loaves daily of the same value and weight as a brother or sister takes, and for cooking and ale 3½d. daily as a brother or sister takes, and free entry and exit through the great gate of the hospital to their plot and to the church within the hospital at all due and proper hours; provided that, if one of them die before the other, payment of two of the loaves, one white and one black, shall cease; also they shall not let the plot at farm without licence. Moreover, if payment of the said corrodies be in arrear for a whole month, William and Joan may distrain for them in all the hospital's lands in London; and the parties are agreed that if Joan, after her husband's death, implore the tenants of the tenement on the corner with the shops and houses built thereon, situated in the parish of St. Mary Abbechirche in the lane called 'Shetbournlane,' London, to wit, between a tenement sometime of Hugh de Portesmuth on the south and the said lane on the north, and extending in length from the garden of Thomas de Sancto Edmundo on the west to the churchyard of St. Mary Abbechirche on the east, touching the said tenement or any parcel thereof by reason of dower or for any other cause or title, or enter therein, then the payment of her corrody shall cease, and the master of the hospital may enter the plot and expel her therefrom.

For £ mark paid in the hanaper.
