alive or dead the king at the suit of Stephen de Crophull granted the office to him for life by letters patent, the king recollecting the circumstances under which the previous grant to William was made and his losses in his service granted by letters patent that he should retain the office notwithstanding the subsequent grant to Stephen; the king, because the said William by his order is constantly attendant upon his service in the great wardrobe has granted that while so attendant he may discharge the said office by a substitute for whom he will answer at his peril. This grace shall not, however, be drawn into a precedent.

Licence for the alienation in mortmain to the abbot and convent of Gerondon, in satisfaction of 10 marks of the 10l. yearly of land and rent not held in chief which at the request of John Darcy the younger the king granted them licence to acquire to find two chaplains to celebrate divine service in the chapel of the hermitage by Crepelgate, London, for him, the queen and their children, of the following four messuages, which are held of the king in free burgage and extended at 4l. 16s. 8d. yearly beyond the rent resolute, as appears by inquisition taken by Simon Fraunceys, late mayor and escheator of London:

- by Mary de Sancto Paulo, countess of Pembroke, two in the city of London and the suburb thereof;
- by William Claptus of London, 'citizen,' and by Robert de Ineworth, chaplain, respectively, a messuage in the said suburb.

Presentation of Roger de Deneford to the church of Melnorby, in the diocese of Carlisle, in the king's gift by reason of the lands of Robert Parvyng, deceased, tenant in chief, being in his hands.