MEMBRANE 42

Feb. 1.
Westminster.

Pardon to William Pacok, now imprisoned in the Marshalsea, for the death of John de Munketon killed at Pepleton, as it appears by the record of William Scot and his fellows, justices of the King's Bench, that he killed him in self defence.

Feb. 1.
Westminster.

Licence for the abbot of Fourneys to bring corn pertaining to his manors and granges in Ireland and other victuals from Ireland to England for the sustenance of himself and his convent and household; and protection for one year for him and his men and servants bringing the same in ships and boats.

Westminster.

Whereas Mary de Sancto Paulo, relict of Aymer de Valencia, earl of Pembroke, and executrix of his will, released to Edward II all crops appraised and purveyed by his ministers in manors and lands of the earl after his death for the sustenance of the said king's lieges in Gascony, and the earl's horses, steeds, armour, silver vessels and other goods which came into the king's hands after his death, and debts wherein the king was bound to him at his death, which she could require by reason of the said will, and surrendered her estate or term in the towns of Staunford and Grantham by reason of the grant thereof made by that king to the earl for a term not then expired, as well as the custodies of lands late of John Lovel of Tichemersh and Gilbert de Stapelton then in her hands by reason of the nonage of the heirs, with the marriages of such heirs; and that king in return pardoned the executors of the earl's will, their mainpernors and the heirs of the earl all debts due to him by the earl at the exchequer, the wardrobe or elsewhere, saving debts by way of pledge, mainprise or recognition for others, and all actions he might have against them touching accounts of prest money and other receipts or charges; and whereas the king that now is by letters patent confirmed the foregoing to Laurence de Hastynge, now earl of Pembroke, kinsman and one of the heirs of Aymer: it is now shewn on behalf of the present earl that the treasurer and barons of the exchequer of Dublin, because there is no mention in the letters of Edward II of pardon of debts due at the exchequer of Ireland are requiring such debts from lands late of the said Aymer in Ireland by summons of the said exchequer, and refuse to allow such pardon before them, wherefore the king, having regard
