king would confirm such transfer it should be lawful for him to surrender deed Roger de Faudon has acknowledged in the chancery in person; the king, because Roger de Chastrefeld has surrendered the letters of Edward II to be cancelled and for his good service, has granted that he shall have the shewing that long before Roger Bavent granted his lands to the king, to raise a loan for the said Roger he became bound with him to John de Gloucestre, citizen of London, in 160L for 80L lent by John to the said Roger, and for his indemnity Roger bound himself to him in 500L to save him harmless against the said John, pursuant to the statute of Acton Burnel, and praying that, inasmuch as at the suit of the said John against him, because the lands of the said Roger are now in the king’s hands, for the execution of the statute, he has satisfied him of the said 80L, the king will cause satisfaction to be made to him herein; and the king seeing that by the said letters obligatory shewn before him as well as by trustworthy testimony the truth of the statements made in the petition
