then granted the said principality with all his lordships and lands of North Wales, West Wales and South Wales, knights’ fees and voidances of bishoprics, advowsons and all other things pertaining to the said principality as well as to the king in those parts, as fully as the latter had held the same, asserts that by virtue of such charter he should grant such licence.
Nevertheless, for reasons laid before the council for the king and his right herein, it appeared to the council that, the said charter notwithstanding, it pertains to the king to grant the licence, and by his council and the prince’s council then present it was ordained that the precentor and chapter should proceed to the election, lest by a protracted discussion as to whether the grant of the licence for this turn pertains to the king or to the prince the time granted to them to elect in should expire or their church, on account of a prolonged voidance, should suffer expenses or the king or prince should be prejudiced by a heedless grant of the licence without clearing up the doubt; and this, by these presents, the king has thought good to intimate to them.

By C.

Licence, after inquisition ad quod damnum taken by Geoffrey de Wychyngham, mayor of London and escheator in the same city, and for 40s. which the said John will pay to the king, for the alienation in mortmain by Ralph de Bray to John de Teversham, parson of the church of St. Magnus, London, of a vacant place in that parish, 108 feet long by 40 feet broad, to make a cemetery to bury the dead in. It is found by the inquisition that the place is charged with 5 marks of rent for the sustenance of a perpetual chantry in the said church for the soul of Adam de Bekenfeld, and is charged to the prior of the church of the Holy Trinity, Canterbury, in 20s. of quit rent yearly, that it is worth nothing by the year and cannot be extended as of any value yearly because of the charges aforesaid, and that it is held of the king in free burgage as the whole city is.

London.

And the 40s. have been paid in the hanaper.

Grant to Michael de Northburgh, king’s clerk, of the archdeaconry of Suffolk, in the king’s gift by reason of the temporalities of the see of Norwich being in his hands.

the room of brother William de Calne, resigned.

By letter of the Keeper.

Licence, for 6s. 8d. which he will pay the king, for John son of William de Eglesfield to hold to him and his heirs a messuage and 8 acres of land in Glassanby, which Alexander de Crokedayk, his kinsman, whose heir he is, under the name of Alexander le Clerc, acquired in fee from John de Crokedayk, who held the same of Edward II in chief, and afterwards granted to John de Leysanby, now deceased, for his life, at the rent of 4s. 1d. without the licence of the said king, and which on account of these trespasses have been taken into the king’s hands. Cumberland.
