Out of regard for Richard, archbishop of Armagh, of whose life, knowledge and honesty, laudable testimony is brought to the king, the late pope by bulls has made provision of benefices in Ireland, that they, the executors of the said bulls and their proctors may without challenge or hindrance of the king or his ministers of that land prosecute such provisions to effect; saving always the rights of him and his crown.

On the petition of the prioress and nuns of Stretford atte Bo, shewing that, by pretext of a licence from the late king for them to acquire in mortmain 10l. yearly of land and rent, they have acquired from William Ryght, 8 acres of land, from Giles de Ruyl, chaplain an acre of land, and from Christina Terry a messuage, a toft and acres of land, in Brambeleye, and from John de Rypoun, chaplain, acres of meadow in Westhamme, without inquisition or other process made as required by their licence, and have entered into the same as praying pardon for these trespasses; the king has pardoned the same and granted that the prioress and nuns shall retain the premises, which are not held in chief and are worth 8s. yearly as appears by inquisition now taken by Peter de Bukstede, escheator in the counties of Essex and Middlesex, in mortmain without hindrance from the king or his minister.

Further, he has granted licence for the alienation in mortmain to the by his clerks, John de Sancto Paulo, and Walter Power, and by Robert Porter of Stretford, of 2 acres of land in Brambeleye and by the same Robert, of a messuage, 4 acres of land and 2 acres of meadow, in Stebenhithe, Brambeleye and Westhamme, likewise not held in chief and worth 6s. 8d. yearly, as appears by another inquisition taken by the same escheator; to hold with the said lands so previously acquired by them in satisfaction of 16s. yearly of the before mentioned 10l. of land and rent.
