of the town of Neупort, which he holds at farm. If the chancellor or the dean decease, the prior and brethren shall hold the manors (sic) of Writeln and Neuport so long as they are making such payments in Paris for the king, answering at the Exchequer for any surplus beyond the said farms. If the farmers aforesaid make default in payment of their farms, they shall incur the penalty by judgment of the Exchequer as they would have incurred for default of payment at the Exchequer. The carrying of the money to be paid to the count is to be at the king's peril. Witnesses:—R. bishop of Durham, J. bishop of Bath, W. bishop of Carlisle, W. Marshal, earl of Pembroke, H. de Burgo, earl of Kent, Ralph son of Nicholas, William de Ralegh, Godfrey de Craucumbe, Amaury de Sancto Amando, John son of Philip, Henry de Carlolo and others. Given by the hand of R. bishop of Chichester, the chancellor.
