proposes for her better quiet to dwell in the abbey of Lacock or some other religious house, of 48l. blank yearly out of the farm of the manor of Melkesham by the hands of Amicia, countess of Devon, to whom the king has committed that manor at farm for life, or by the hands of another farmer.

Mandate in pursuance to the said countess.

Appointment of Roger, abbot of Glastonbury, as the king's proctor with the other proctors at the court of Rome.

Whereas by complaint of men of the city of London it has come to the king's ears, touching injuries and oppressions as well of tallages assessed on them as of other grievances inflicted upon them by the mayor and his accomplices; and whereas for 300 marks which the mayor, sheriffs and commonalty of the city have given to Edward the king's son, and for jewels presented to the king and his on behalf of the city of London, at the beginning of this year, they assessed a tallage of 1000 marks upon the poor of the city so that the mayor and his accomplices contributed nothing thereto, but in this and in all other tallages aggrieved the poor above measure; for enquiring into which when the mayor was lately at Windsor before the king, the king appointed J. Manessel, treasurer of York, and Imbert Pugeys, the steward, and Aubrey de Fescampis, clerk of the wardrobe, to make inquisition herein, but the mayor would not permit them to proceed, whereat the king is much moved; he, therefore, giving the said persons power by these presents to enquire into the said tallages and other tallages and excesses, commands the said mayor, sheriffs and commonalty to cause the whole city to come before them, or so many as can well make the said inquisition.

Grant to E. the queen of the wardship of the lands with the castles and other appurtenances late of Reynold de Mohun, with the keeping and marriage of the heirs, saving to his relict reasonable dower of the said lands; grant to her also of the marriage of the said relict, with the forfeiture thereof if she marry without the queen's licence.

Mandate to sheriffs, escheators and other bailiffs in whose bailiwicks the lands of the said Reynold are, to give seisin thereof to Ralph de Aunger, the queen's steward, and Peter de Norton, her bailiff, or one of them.
