MEMBRANE 14d.

Whereas Roger Bertram of Mitford granted by his charter to Adam de Gesemuth the town of Benrigg and a toft and one acre of land in Mitford, to hold to him and his heirs, and the king confirmed the grant; and the said Roger is bound in many debts to divers Jews; the king grants to the said Adam, for his services to the king and Edward his son, that he and his heirs be not bound by reason of the said lands to the king and his heirs or the said Jews in any of the said debts, or that, at the mandate of the king or his justices appointed to the keeping of the Jews, distrains be made in the said lands by sheriffs or other ministers for the said debts; saving to the king and his heirs or the said Jews recovery, if necessary, of the said debts in other lands of the said Roger.

MEMBRANE 13d.

Whereas by divine disposition peace has been made between the king and his barons, the king commands the bailiffs and good men of Derby to cause the said peace to be proclaimed and observed; and on behalf as well of the king as the barons to prevent outrages, and arrest any perpetrating such.

The like to the coroners in the county of Derby to cause the king's peace to be proclaimed throughout the country and to observed in the said form. [Feodera.]

Whereas peace has been made and it has been provided by the counsel of the barons that none shall bear arms without licence and that all prisoners taken in the conflict at Northampton, in whosesoever hands they may be, shall be brought to the king in London, and the king requires the presence of John de Grey, constable of the castle of Nottingham, he commands him to cause proclamation to be made in his bailiwick that none bear arms in those parts without the king's special mandate, and to come without horses and arms to treat with the king, bringing with him Baldwin Wake, Anker de Freschemvill, Hugh Gobion, Roger de Mortem, Richard de Hemington and other prisoners in his keeping in order that exchange may be made of the said prisoners for prisoners taken at Lewes or the prisoners released on sufficient mainprise.
