To the Chancellor and University of the Scholars of Oxford and the mayor and good men of that town. The king is very greatly disturbed by the contentions and discords and also by the late conflict between them in the said town, and as they have agreed upon certain persons to treat of and ordain peace between them, as the king is informed by brothers John de Balsham and Simon de Len, the king commands them, as soon as these have given their award, to let him know it, and he will ratify it, so long as they say what is to his fealty and honour, and if he finds anything in the award to be corrected, he will benevolently correct it as is just. He wills also that the scholars of the said university assemble in the said town, and stay there in security as they used to do, provided that they make oath to their chancellor, that with the said burgesses they will give their counsel and aid for the safe and peaceful keeping of the said town.
