1265. Membrane 23 - cont.

reputing F. archbishop of Dublin as useful and necessary for the preservation of that land and for the reformation of peace between the nobles and magnates thereof, commands him to take the charge of the chief justiciaryship of that land, and to attend diligently to the said office with the counsel of H. bishop of Meath. He is also to take order touching the chancellor, the taking of castles into the king's hands, the safe keeping thereof and the putting of munitions therein, with the counsel of the said bishop, behaving courteously in these matters, until the king shall make further order by his council.

Mandate to the said archbishop, for the love of the king, to take up the said office accordingly; and to the bishop of Meath to give his counsel and aid.

Writ de intendendo in favour of the said archbishop, directed to all persons of the king and Edward his son, in Ireland, both English and Irish.

Membrane 22.

Feb. 18. Safe conduct until Easter for Thomas, abbot of St. Saviour's in Westminster, Ireland, and Master Thomas de Cheddeworth, going to Ireland with their household and goods.

By K., Ralph de Cameys, Giles de Argenten and Roger de Sancto Johanne.

Bond to Thomas de Basing, citizen of London, in 56l. 13s. 4d. for 20 tuns of new wine now taken from him in London to the king's use by Reynold de Suffolk, chamberlain of London, as is testified by Walter de Creppinges the steward, to be paid on the quinzaine of Easter.

Grant to Stephen de London, chaplain, of the deanery of Bruges, void by the promotion of Michael de Fenles to be bishop of Thérouanne (Morinen').

Pardon, at the instance of Thomas de Ferraviis, to William Pilche of Sonky, an idiot, for the death of Augustine le Fevere of Maunsecestre, as it appears by testimony of Robert de Stokcport, coroner in the county of Lancaster, and other trustworthy persons that the said William was passing along the high road by night when he was met by the said Augustine, in the disguise of a terrible monster uttering groans and refusing to speak though adjured in God's name, on account of which the said William rushed upon him as a monster and killed him.

Bond to Thomas de Basing, citizen of London, in 46l. 13s. 4d. for 20 tuns of new wine taken from him in London to the king's use by Reynold de Suffolk, chamberlain of London, as is testified by Walter de Creppinges the steward, to be paid on the quinzaine of Easter.

Feb. 19. Commitment during pleasure, by the counsel of the barons of the council, to Richard de Grey of the houses late of Cok son of Aaron, Jew of London, with the rents and other appurtenances in the city of London; so that he answer for the issues at the Exchequer.

Grant to Henry de Candevre, king's serjeant, of the wardship of the lands and heirs of William le Venur of Oxinwod, with the marriage of the heirs