And if any claim any right within the said metes, let him come to the king, who is the defender of the said prior and brethren as he ought to be, and when he has heard his reasons he will cause justice to be done to him.

In the year 1264 in the month of March, in the presence of the king, by the counsel of the nobles and magnates of the realm, it has been enacted that B. archbishop of Canterbury shall return to England, on the following conditions, to wit:—

(1) That on his return he shall release sentences of excomunica-tion promulgated against any persons by reason of the disturbance of the realm, on condition that such excommunicated persons make satisfaction for their excesses.

(2) That for making amends and for excesses committed upon churches and ecclesiastical persons, within places immediately subject to his jurisdiction, judgment shall be given by the archbishop by the counsel of his suffragans or the greater and saner part; and in the arduous affairs touching the church and the realm of England, he shall take order by the counsel of the same and other discreet persons of the realm.

(3) That he may bring with him Masters H. de Mortuo Mari, S. archdeacon of Canterbury, and Poncius Sabler, his household clerks, and retain these aliens alone of his counsel and household.

(4) That all other clerks beneficed in England wishing to return to their benefices with the archbishop, may safely return, and spent their ecclesiastical goods, within the realm, as they are bound to do, taking and sending nothing out of the realm, unless of necessity and approved by the king's council.

(5) That neither the archbishop nor his clerks may bring anything with them in letters, messages or mandates or procure anything by themselves or others whereby danger or prejudice may happen to the king or any of the realm.

For the remembrance of these things the seal of the king of England is appended to these presents.
