May 6. Wheres Edward the king's son, by reason of the discord which has been lately amongst the nobles and magnates of Ireland, has commanded Richard de la Rokele, his justiciary of Ireland, to come to England speedily to inform the king and him of the state of that land, so that both may give their counsel for the reformation thereof; and whereas the said Edward with the counsel and assent of the king has committed the said land to Roger Waspail, to keep with the aid and counsel of F. archbishop of Dublin, and H. bishop of Meath, until Richard returns to Ireland, or the said Edward make other order touching the office of justiciary ; the king commands all persons of Ireland to be intendant to the said Roger.
