Whereas by the assent and will of Edward the king's son, the king committed the castle of Bristol with the town to Simon de Monte Forti, earl of Leicester, for a certain time, willing that the men of the town should not be intendant to the said Edward or any other if these should wish to obtain entry; but hold the town manfully for the king and the earl, the king promises, in order that they may do this more surely and may not incur damage or loss by reason of such defence, to keep them harmless against all men. [\textit{Federa.}]

By the justiciary, R. de Sancto Johanne and Giles de Argenteun.

Protection until Michaelmas for Walter de Spany, merchant of Lich[field].

The like for Alan Burnel.

The like for one year for Matthias Bezilles.

Pardon to Walter son of Thomas de la Grene of Thornebiry for the death of Walter son of John de la Hide, as it appears by inquisition made by Hugh le Despencer, justiciary of England, that he killed him in self-defence.

Pardon to Nicholas Achard of Hereford, for the death of Richard Dolle, after like inquisition.

Simple protection, until Michaelmas, for Hugh son of Adam, Bartholomew le Bygod, Master Thomas de Weseham, Ralph de Gorges and Gilbert son of Hugh.

Commitment to Master Giles de Avenebiry, treasurer of Hereford, of the king's garden in the suburb of Hereford, to hold for life at a rent of 20s. a year to the sheriff of Hereford.

As it appears by inquisition made by John de Bottele, sheriff of Southampton, that the customs and services which Christiana de Odyham ought to do, and she and her ancestors have done for her land in the manor of Odyham, which Simon de Monte Forti, earl of Leicester, and Eleanor countess of Leicester his wife, hold for their lives by commitment of the king, are extended at 14s. 4d. a year; the king grants to her, for her long service to the countess, with the assent of the earl and countess, that she and her heirs shall pay to them this sum yearly for their lives instead of the said customs and services, and after their deaths the same sum to the king's bailiffs and be quit of the said services and customs for ever.

Pardon, at the instance of the abbot of Dore, to Nicholas son of Walter Caterine of Chilteham for the death of Walter le Marescal of that town.

Mandate, by the counsel of the barons, to the mayor and sheriffs of London, as the king has commanded at another time, not to allow anyone to molest the Jews of London or their households, whom the king took under his special protection after the late disturbance. \textit{And they are patent.}
