1265. Membrane 11. (Schedule).

Aug. 7. To the chapter of York. Whereas the king heretofore, being in his full power, granted to Edmund de Mortuo Mari that he would provide for him in an ecclesiastical benefice as soon as he could, and whereas after the battle of Lewes between the king and Simon de Monte Forti, sometime earl of Leicester, the king was in the keeping of the said Simon and his adherents, whereby, during the said time the said Simon against the king’s will caused letters to be sealed with the king’s seal, which not the king but the earl himself used at his will, containing that the king granted the treasuryship of York to Amaury de Monte Forti, and whereas the king, by the help of God, has resumed his powers, he wills that the said grant and other letters which were made against the king’s will while he was in custody shall be revoked and annulled, and the king now of his own free will (sponte) grants the said treasuryship to the said Edmund and commands them to assign him a stall in the choir and a place in the chapter.
