March 30. Admission of the barons of the king's ports to the king's grace and peace, and remission to them of the king's indignation and rancour against them because of any trespass done by them in the time of the late war to the day of the making of these presents, so that they shall have his firm peace without peril of life and limb and imprisonment; and that they shall have as far as pertains to the king their houses, lands and chattels which they had at this day; and their liberties granted to them by the king and his predecessors as they have hitherto had them and used them. Pardon also to them of trespasses, exactions (toltas) and damages, committed by them in the said time, so far as pertains to the king, on condition that they do and receive justice so far as pertains to others, according to their laws and liberties. Grant also that the king will acquit them to the best of his power of all arrest and attachment as well in Gascony as in Ireland by occasion of trespasses which they did in the said times; and quittance to them of their hostages and mainpernors. All these things he grants to them and wills that they be observed so long as they are faithful to him and his heirs and give their service faithfully and constantly for the king and his heirs against all persons, as well denizens as aliens, as they are bound to do, so that henceforward if they presume to offend (delinquere) against the king and his heirs or adhere to his adversaries, their possessions, goods and liberties shall fall entirely (incurranfur) to the king and his heirs at their will.

And the letter is duplicated.

March 28. Whereas the king heretofore committed to Philip Basset the castle of Devizes, during pleasure, and it is necessary to lay out expenses in the munition and repair thereof; the king grants that he will cause to be repaid to the said Philip at the Exchequer all expenses laid out by him in the repair of the castle by view of Ralph de Poulsholt and William le Parker, whom the king has appointed to view the said expenses.

March 30. Grant to queen Eleanor of the wardship of all lands late of Margaret, sometime countess of Lincoln, who held in chief, to wit, as well the lands of her inheritance as those which she held in dower of the lands which belong by inheritance to Henry de Lascy, the king's ward; to hold to her or her assigns, with knights' fees, advowsons of churches, wards, reliefs, escheats and other things that fall in, during the minority of the said Henry.

Signification to D. archbishop of Cashel, of the royal assent to the election of Laurence de Duulak, precentor of the church of Emly to be bishop of that place.

Remission to Master Adam de Belsted, clerk, of the king's indignation and rancour of mind against him, by occasion of the disturbance had in the realm; and the king is unwilling that he be henceforth molested in his person, lands, rents or possessions.
