that they may within that term go where they will with their goods, within the realm without disturbance, or being followed, spied upon (contregeitez) arrested or grieved by anyone, provided that they do no harm to the king within such term. And if any will go contrary (vuille deforcer) to these things, the king shall be bound to warrant and defend them and their goods against all men.

And all those of their company who are elsewhere and abstain from doing harm, are in this safe conduct.

In witness whereof the king has set his seal. French.

June 25. Safe conduct in the same terms for Roger le Peytevyn and Richard de Sees with all their company and goods, from Sunday after Midsummer, 51 Henry III, until Sunday after SS. Peter and Paul.

[Note in the margin.] Memorandum that a letter whereof the transcript is attached here according to the roll was renewed and confirmed and enrolled in the roll of Patents of 9 Edward, in the month of June, and placed in the treasury of that king.

[The copy referred to as being on this roll is now missing.]

July 1. Admission into the king's peace of John de Eyvill, Nicholas de Segrave, William Marmium, Norman de Arcy and William de Ardern, and the other disinherited who were not in the peace of Tuesday after Midsummer last, and all those of their society wherever they may be in the realm; and remission to them of the king's indignation and rancour of mind by occasion of the disturbance had in the realm. Also, with the assent and will of the magnates and nobles of the realm, pardon to them of their trespasses during the said disturbance.

Also grant to those who with the said disinherited have not yet come to the king's peace, that they may come to the king's peace before St. Peter's Chains next, and they may have the aforesaid quitances and remissions in the said form, provided that they behave well hereafter and find sufficient mainprise that they will do so, and that they will stand to the award and ordinance made by O. cardinal deacon of St. Adrian's, the papal legate, and the other magnates and nobles of the realm especially elected for this; and they shall enjoy such award.

Further, the king has promised to ask diligently those who hold their lands by his gift to restore seisin of them to the said disinherited, on sufficient security for the ransom of the same, according to the tenor of the said award.

He has granted also to the said disinherited, as well those who first came to the king's peace, as those who have come now, and those who shall come within the prescribed term, that they shall have the aid for the said ransom promised and granted to them by the prelates and clergy of the realm at the instance of the king and at the request of the legate.

[July 1.] Pardon to Nicholas de Segrave of the king's indignation against him by occasion of the disturbance in the realm, and of his trespasses in the time of such disturbance; on the mainprise of Geoffrey de Geynvull, Master Gregory de Neapolio dean of Bayeux and Fulk Lovel, archdeacon of Colecestre, before the king that he be of good behaviour and stand to the award of Kenilworth; and confirmation to him of the quit-claim made to him by Edmund the king's son of his
