Sept. 10. St. Edmunds

To the bailiffs, burgesses and whole commonalty of Yarmouth. Whereas the king is credibly informed that contentions and discords may easily arise in their town to the very grievous damage of him and them, he is sending Walter de Burges, marshal of the household, to arrest with them and with their counsel and aid the bodies of certain persons of whom sinister suspicion is had, whose names the said Walter will make known to them on the king's behalf, and who wander night and day in the said town, and to keep them securely so that the said Walter and twenty burgesses of the more approved burgesses of the town, unanimously elected and sent to the king to Norwich on behalf of the commonalty to hear the king's order there, may have the bodies of the said men there before the king on this instant Friday after the Exaltation of the Holy Cross to hear the king's will: and therefore he commands them on their fealty and the oath which they have sworn to him to admit Walter for this and do the premises with him as he will let them know on the king's behalf.

Whereas because of delapidations and destructions done by Henry de Bukingham, late warden of the king's hospital of Hospring, the king has removed him from the wardenship and by the common counsel of the brethren thereof has committed it to brother Walter de Tancth to keep during pleasure; and whereas, so the king hears, the said hospital has been so burdened with debt by the said Henry that its ruin is inevitable unless a remedy be found; grant to the said Walter, that with the counsel and assent of the said brethren, and with the counsel of Thomas de Rowell, king's clerk, if he can be present in this matter, he may dispose of the goods of the hospital for the benefit of the hospital as he the said clerk and the brethren deem to be expedient.
