Licence, with the assent of the council, for Radegundis Bechet, lady of Mortimer, to sue for the recovery of her lands and the castle of Jenay; as by a treaty between Degury Say, ‘chivaler,’ deceased, then her husband, of the one part, and Bertram Claykyn, then constable of France, in and by the name of Charles, then king of France, and John, duke of Berry, of the other part, for the delivery of the castle, of her own inheritance, it was ordained that she and Katharine her daughter, now deceased, and their heirs and successors should have all revenues of the lands and castle and other possessions which she and her said husband had at the time when the country of Gascony was under the obedience of the king’s kinsman Edward, late prince of Aquitaine and Wales, as might appear by letters patent to her, but she dare not sue without the king’s licence.

By p.s.

Membrane 15—cont.

July 12.
Westminster.

Licence, with the assent of the council, for Radegundis Bechet, lady of Mortimer, to sue for the recovery of her lands and the castle of Jenay; as by a treaty between Degury Say, ‘chivaler,’ deceased, then her husband, of the one part, and Bertram Claykyn, then constable of France, in and by the name of Charles, then king of France, and John, duke of Berry, of the other part, for the delivery of the castle, of her own inheritance, it was ordained that she and Katharine her daughter, now deceased, and their heirs and successors should have all revenues of the lands and castle and other possessions which she and her said husband had at the time when the country of Gascony was under the obedience of the king’s kinsman Edward, late prince of Aquitaine and Wales, as might appear by letters patent to her, but she dare not sue without the king’s licence.

By p.s.

In the name and confirmation to John Mory, the warden, and the fellows, chaplains and scholars of the college called ‘Seinto Marie College of Wyenestre’ by Winchester of letters patent of Thomas Nevyle, the prior, and the convent of the cathedral church of St. Swithin, Winchester, dated at Winchester in their chapter house, 11 April, 1403, inspecting and confirming an indenture of William of Wykeham, bishop of Winchester, dated at his manor of Sutton, 2 October, 1399, demising to them the following at farm to hold for 100 years, they rendering yearly at Michaelmas to him and his successors of the old rent of assize 38s. 2d. and for church-scot (eningeis) and all other services and customs 10s. 7d., as extended of old, and paying yearly at his two turns at his manor of Bishop’s Sutton 18d., called ‘negings’ for all services, customs and demands, viz.—a toft, a virgate of arable land, 4 acres of wood and 8 roods of purpurest in Roppeley, co. Southampoton, sometime of Adam Ocle and afterwards of Roger Haywode, of which toft, land and purpurest one head extends on the common field called ‘Alfredum’ towards the west, another abuts from ‘Alfredum’ to the wood of the manor of Bishop’s Sutton called ‘Rammescombe’ towards the north, another from the said wood to Wandesworth on the east and another from Wandesworth to the highway leading from Roppeley towards Aulton and Sutton on the south, and the 4 acres of wood lie by the said highway on the north, the wood of the bishop called ‘le Holte’ on the east, the wood called ‘Pollardeswoode’ on the north and the land of the college on the west; a toft, a virgate of arable land in Roppeley lying in 6 crofts and 4 acres of wood sometime of John Manycroft and afterwards of Ralph Pollard, of which one croft lies between the garden of the college on the west, north and south and a lane called ‘Hokereslane’ on the west and the other five crofts and 4 acres of wood lie together between the said lane, garden and close of the college on the north and west and the wood called ‘de Holte’ and a croft called ‘Brecelond’ and the land sometime of John Shepherd and Thomas Mauncell on the south; two tofts and two half virgates of land in Roppeley lying in three crofts sometime of the same John and Thomas, one called ‘Rykmannescroft,’ the second called ‘Pudelston’ and the third called ‘Shepherdescroft,’ and extending on the highway from Sutton to Aulton on the north, a croft of the college called ‘Brecelond’ on the east and the land of the college and William Mayheu on the south and west; a toft and a half virgate of land in Roppeley sometime of Lucy Carter lying in two crofts between the land of the college and the land of John Spede on the north, east and south and a lane called ‘Cartereslane’ on the west; a toft and 58 acres of land and wood in Roppeley some time held by Pernell Manycroft and afterwards of William Gerveys lying in seven crofts, except 24 acres