The dean and chapter of the church of Exeter lately as patrons presented William Hayford to the vicarage of the church of Asshoperton, in the diocese of Exeter, on the death of Richard Madeford, last vicar, and he was accordingly admitted, instituted and inducted and continued his possession until lately one Matthew Volaton, chaplain, obtained a grace and provision of the vicarage from the pope, and the king, believing the vicarage to be vacant, by letters patent granted licence for him to accept the grace and provision and by pretext of this his proctors entered the church on the vigil of the Assumption fast and there while the chaplains were celebrating divine service forcibly assaulted the said William and others of the parish hearing mass, to expel him from possession, and so the church was polluted, and William has since been daily troubled by Matthew and his proctors and cannot live peaceably on his vicarage. The king, in consideration of the premises and because William was in peaceful possession of the vicarage long before the date of the licence, as appears by the letters of institution and induction and the enrolment of the king's letters, declares that it was never his intention that William should be expelled from possession but that the letters are invalid and annulled so far as concerns the licence.
