MEMBRANE 17.

Nov. 9. Westminster.  Whereas two messuages, two cottages, 80½ acres of land and 2 acres of meadow in Littelmore, co. Oxford, a messuage and 30 acres of land with a meadow adjoining in Couele and a ferry called the ferry of Samfordhille, co. Oxford, came into the hands of Richard II by reason of the forfeiture of Robert Tresilian, and afterwards the said king by letters patent granted the messuages, cottages, land and meadow to one William Bernard and his heirs and assigns and the ferry to one William Wyncelowe for life: and subsequently the said lands in Littelmore by the name of a messuage and 3 virgates of land and the said lands in Couele by the name of a messuage and land adjoining and the said ferry by the name of Samfordhille were taken into the king's hands by reason of the idiotcy of Roger son and heir of Richard Stanlake, where neither Roger nor any of his ancestors after the said forfeiture had any possession in the said lands, on which the king by letters patent granted the said lands in Littelmore and Couele to the said William Bernard for life during the said idiotcy of Roger and the said ferry to the said William Wyncelowe so long as it should be in the king's hands on account of the idiotcy; and now Roger the idiot is dead, and John Andrewe of Sutton and Joan his wife as in her right and Agnes Curteys her sister as kinswomen and heirs of Roger, viz. daughters of Elizabeth the sister of Richard the father of Roger, entered into all the said lands with the ferry without suit to the king and enfeoffed Richard Curtenay, clerk, of the same to himself and his heirs; the king confirms the estate of the said Richard Curtenay in the same to himself and his heirs and assigns to the value of 10 marks yearly.

By K. and for 100s. paid in the hanaper.
