May 14. Leicester. Whereas the priory of Reppyngdon, of the foundation of the king's progenitors and of the king's patronage, is charged with so much debt by lack of good rule and by corrodies granted and ruinous demises of its possessions at farm and excessive expenses of the presidents that divine worship ceases there and alms and other works of piety are withdrawn and the dispersal of the canons is to be feared; the king has taken the priory with all things belonging to it and the corrodies and farms thus granted into his hand during pleasure, and committed the keeping of the priory and its manors, lands, rents, things and faculties to Richard Grey of Codnore, Thomas Gryslay, Robert Fraunceys and Peter Melbourne so that all issues beyond the necessary maintenance of the canons and their servants shall be expended on the succour of the house and the corrodies, farms and other charges shall cease until the priory is relieved, and suspected persons shall be removed; and has granted protection.
