Whereas Robert Aissehefeld by licence of Richard II enfeoffed Master John de Ixworth, clerk, Master Walter de Ixworth, clerk, John Barton, clerk, John Smyth, clerk, and Simon Blyant of the manor of Lytelhawe, co. Suffolk, held in chief, and nevertheless afterwards by an inquisition taken before Roger Drury, ‘chivaler,’ Richard Alfred and Thomas Hethe by virtue of a commission of Henry IV and also by another inquisition taken before John Gurnay, late escheator in the county, by pretext of a writ of the same king it was found that Robert died seised in his demesne as of fee in the manor and Robert son of John Asshefeld was his kinsman and heir viz. son of John his son, and of the age of twelve years and more at the time of his death, and by pretext of the inquisitions the manor was taken into the hands of Henry IV until Robert when he came to full age had livery of it and afterwards the said John de Ixworth and others released their right in it to him and his heirs and assigns without licence; the king, for 10 marks paid in the hanaper, pardons the trespasses in this, and grants licence for Robert to enfeoff Thomas Pepyr and William Whitlok of the manor and for them to re-enfeoff him and Eleanor his wife of it, to hold to themselves and the heirs of their bodies.
