June 26. Appointment, during pleasure, of Richard Bolton to audit the accounts of any accountable ministers of all castles, manors and lands late of Thomas, late duke of Clarence, in Holdernesse in the county of York and in the county of Lincoln, in the king's hand by his death, receiving at the hands of the king's receiver there wages and fees according to the custom of the manor of Brustwyk, as appears in old accounts of the manor.

June 28. Presentation of David Gough, parson of the church of Tregruk, in the diocese of Llandaff, to the church of Hapsay, in the diocese of Hereford, on an exchange of benefices with Adam Usk.

July 1. Commission to the sheriff of Salop to receive the issues of the manor of Cheylemerssh, co. Salop, and keep them safely until it be settled to whom the manor shall pertain of right. The king lately by letters under the privy seal ordered his kinswoman the countess of March to send at the quinzaine of Trinity, now last past, to the council at Westminster such of her counsel as should seem good to her to show why the king's knight Humphrey Stafford should not be restored to his possession of the manor, of which he was seised in his demesne as of fee after the king's crossing to Normandy and disseised by Thomas Lygon, Richard Wigmore and others to the use of the earl of March, her husband, but she did not obey.
