assigned over 1,000 marks, in tailles, to the said John Tyrell and Catherine his wife, executrix of John Spenser, late keeper of the great wardrobe, in part payment of the surplus due to him from the said late king, on his account in the Exchequer; but, at the instance of the council, it was agreed between the said John Tyrell and the said earl that the said 1,000 marks should be paid to the said John by the treasurer and chamberlains of the Exchequer in half-yearly instalments of 100 marks, as a discharge of certain tailles levied at the receipt of the Exchequer in favour of the said earl, as security for the payment of the arrears due to him for the custody of the East march towards Scotland.

The king, therefore, by advice of the council, has ordained, that if the said John do not receive full payment of the said 1,000 marks as aforesaid, he may have recourse to the council and to the said administrators according to the form of the Act of the king's first parliament, relative to the sum of 40,000 marks granted to the said administrators to satisfy the said late king's creditors.
