It was found by inquisition before John Curson, esquire in the county of Nottingham, that Catherine, late the wife of William Sutton, was seised in her demesne as of fee of a moiety of a messuage and also was seised of 10 acres of land and an acre of meadow in Kynston, which are held of the king by petty serjeanty and by the rent of 15d. a year for all services, and that she granted the premises, amongst other things, by the name of all the lands and meadows which she had in the towns and fields of Kynston, Cordlyngstok, Bonyngton, Sutton and Leek, to Robert Farelion and his heirs. Ille, being seised, granted the premises, by the name of all the lands and premises which he had in the said towns and fields, to her and the heirs of her body, with remainder to John Etwell, still surviving, and the heirs of his body, with remainder to Henry Etwell and his heirs. Whereby she was seised and so died, without heir of her body. The king's licence was not obtained in the matter and by another inquisition, taken before Norman Babington, esquire, Richard Byngham, and Hugh Wyllyhy, knight, late sheriff of Nottinghamshire, by virtue of a commission to them and to William Neville, it was found that the said Catherine held the premises in fee-tail on the day of her death and that John Etwell of Notingham entered them without duly suing them out of the king's hands. So by the death of Catherine and by reason of these trespasses they were taken into the king's hands, but now, for 6s. 8d. paid in the hanaper, he has pardoned the trespasses and licences the said John Etwell to have again and to hold the premises.
