MEMBRANE 24.

Feb. 12.
Westminster.

On the petition of Nicholas Bray, 'baker,' citizen of London, and other parishioners of the parish church of St Margaret Moryses in Frydaystrete, London, of the king's patronage, setting forth that Ralph de la Cressoner late of Iclynham, sometime citizen of London, was seised of a tenement in the said parish extending in breadth between a tenement sometime of Simon 'le Heymonger,' afterwards of Hamo 'le Barbier,' and now belonging to the commonalty of the mistery of cutlers, on the north, and a tenement sometime of Thomas de Chyzwell, cordwainer, afterwards of Simon de Merkeworth and now of John Padlingam of Essex, esquire, on the south, and in length from the king's highway of Frydaystrete towards the east to the tenements sometime of Peter 'le Dorturor' and Richard Heyne, now of the said John Padlingam and John Rytke, 'malemaken,' towards the west; and the same Ralph in his will bequeathed the said tenement for the sustenance of a chaplain to celebrate divine service daily in the said church for the souls of Ralph and his friends and other divine services therein, and afterwards died, whereupon William, his son and heir, released all his title in the said tenement to Simon Marchall, annual chaplain in the said church, and his successors and to Geoffrey Shadenesfeld, then parson of the church, and Nicholas Kymbell and other parishioners of the church; and after Simon's death without heir, because he and the said Geoffrey, Nicholas and others were not persons capable in law, the said tenement came into the hands of Richard II, who granted the same by letters patent to Robert Rammesey for life, who granted it to Robert Collee, John Blakeden, Stephen Collee, goldsmiths, Robert Penescales, tailor, and Robert Shirbourne, goldsmith, their heirs and assigns, whose estate therein the said Nicholas Bray now holds and wishes to assign it for the sustenance of a chaplain as aforesaid:—the king has pardoned him the trespasses made herein and released to him all the royal title in the said tenement and granted licence for him to assign it to the rectors and wardens of the said church for the purpose aforesaid.

By p.s. etc.
