Decleration and order  on information that although the vicars of the cathedral church of St. Peter, York, have by virtue of the king’s grant and licence, which are recited, appropriated the church of St. Sampson in that city, and keep their house in common, yet some of them, seeking their private advantage, attempt to apply certain sums of money derived from the revenues of that church to their own use for the time of their absence from the common table on such days and times when they happen of their own choice to be at the table of the canons residentiary or others by custom of the church of York or otherwise—that they shall henceforth receive nothing in money or otherwise for such times of absence, but that the profit arising thereby shall accrue to the common household expenses of the vicars living there in common.
