hospital, York, for a sum of money given to them for the use of the hospital, grant to the said John, for life, a correod within the same, viz.
11 white loaves of the better sort, 6 loaves called ‘miches,’ 8 gallons of the better ale and 6 gallons of the common ale. weekly, and 12d. in money, for victuals from the kitchen, and every year a bushel of salt, a bushel of drawn flour and a stone of candles, and for his fuel 10,000 turves and 3 cart-loads of wood delivered at his dwelling in York, together with livery of cloth of the suit of yeomen of the grantor’s household once a year; and to his wife, if she survive him, half of the above except the livery, and grant also of a yearly rent of 20s. to them in survivorship, until a house of that value be vacant within the hospital, which they are then to have; with covenant for distress upon the lands and possessions of the hospital, if the correod be 20 days in arrear.

For 40s. paid in the hanaper.

Grant, for life, to Ralph, earl of Westmorland, of the fee farm of the town of Appelby, co. Westmorland, of the yearly value of 20 marks, without rendering aught therefor, on the surrender by Hans Guyterner of letters patent granting the premises to him, he being desirous to demesne his estate therein for the purpose of this grant.

By p.s.

Grant to the king’s nephew Thomas, duke of Surrucy, of the office of marshal of England, with all things appertaining thereto, as fully as Thomas de Brotherton, earl of Norfolk, or Roger le Bygot, formerly earl of Norfolk, or any other since their death, or Thomas, duke of Norfolk, held the same, together with the reversion, also during pleasure, of the offices of marshal of the King’s Bench, now held by John Wykes for life by the king’s grant, marshal of the Exchequer, now held by Richard Gascoigne for life, by grant of Thomas, late earl of Kent, and the king’s confirmation, and crier of the marshal before the steward and marshal of the household, now held by Guy de Allesley for life by the late king’s grant and the king’s confirmation, all which offices are to be remitted with that of the office of marshal of England; with power, when any of the offices last named become void, to grant them to any suitable persons, notwithstanding any letters patent to the contrary, and for the said duke to bear, alike in the king’s presence and absence, a gold staff enamelled with black at each end, ornamented with the royal arms at the upper and the duke’s at the lower end, notwithstanding that previous marshals bore only a wooden staff.

By K.

Licence for Edmund, earl of Stafford, and Anne, late the wife of Thomas, earl of Stafford, tenant in chief, to intermarry.

By K.

Membrane 29.

Inspeccimus and confirmation to Elizabeth, countess of Kent, now lady of the town of Licchelade, of the following charter:—

Johannes Dei gratia rex Anglie &c. salutem. Scitis nos concessisse et hanc nostram confirmassus Rogero de Martio Mari et Isabell, nectiue, quod habant unum mercatum apud Licclaelad singulis septimannis per diem Martis et quod habeant ibidem unum feriam

* Charter Rolls of the eleventh, twelfth, and thirteenth years of king John are missing [Rotuli Chartarum, p. 185].