bridge and all other charges, by virtue of which letters patent the said farmer still occupies both the said castle and manor and also certain lands, tenements, rents, services, assarts, wastes and purprestures in Yerldegobyon, Potterspyre, Cosgrave, Fortho, Litylstratford, Shutlunge, Alderton and Bosenhoo in the said county, and Liltyngston Lovell, co. Oxford, which are not parcel of or belonging to the said castle and manor, and which he occupies as parcel of and belonging to the same;

(2) letters patent dated 8 May in the eighteenth year [also not enrolled], granting to Thomas de Everdoun and John Sebryght, for the same term, the custody of all the lands and tenements belonging to the manor of Plumpton Pyrre, co. Northampton, paying 11 marks yearly to the king and maintaining the houses and buildings of the manor and all other charges;

(3) letters patent dated 28 May in the eighteenth year [Calendar, 1391-1396, p. 578], granting to Thomas, archbishop of York, John, bishop of Salisbury, and Edward, earl of Rutland, for their lives in survivorship, all the lands &c. of the late queen Anne; reciting also that the said bishop is dead and the archbishop adjudged a traitor in the Parliament in the twenty first year, that the said earl, both before and after the death and judgement aforesaid, received the said farm of 11 marks from the said time until 1 March in the twenty-first year, by Thomas More, clerk, receiver-general of the said late queen’s lands, although the same were not parcel of or belonging to the said castle and manor, and were not granted to the said earl and his co-feofoes by the aforesaid letters patent, that at the last named date the said earl, then duke of Albemarle, by his letters patent, at the king’s command, granted to the said duchess, for life, the castle of Moresend with all the lands, tenements, rents and services which he had with it by the king’s grant in Moresend, Yerlgobyon, Potterspyre, Cosgrave, Fortho, Litylstratford, Shutlunge, Alderton, Bosenhoo [and] Lyiltyngston Lovell with their appurtenances, as fully as he himself held the same, on condition that they were appurtenant to the said castle, together with timber for repair thereof and fuel within Wyttylwode forest: and that by virtue of the said duke’s letters patent she received the aforesaid 11 marks, although they were not parcel of or belonging to the said castle and manor—of the trespass done therein, and confirmation to her of her estate and possession. Further the king hereby grants to the said duchess, for life, as from Michaelmas in the twenty-first year, all the premises without rent, as held by the late queen. By K.
